Health Promotion

Significant demographical developments and changes in lifestyles, global health risks and alarmingly growing health inequalities produce new, considerable challenges to future societies. There is a growing need for well-justified, research-based and ethically solid contents and methods of health promotion. Customer-oriented, national and international multiprofessional collaboration is essential.

The aim of the research group is to act as a multiprofessional group of experts in the field of health promotion and to develop new, diversified, research-based, ethically solid contents and methods for health promotion. The research group works actively with local, national and international collaborators.

Partners

The research group collaborates with several national and international higher education institutions and public and private organisations.

Most recent publications and products

Publications of the members of the research group are listed in the members’ CVs. Publications of the ongoing projects are listed on the projects’ webpages.

Other publications:

Available at: http://www.uasjournal.fi/index.php/uasi/article/view/1425/1350

Camilla Laaksonen
Tuntiopettaja (päätoiminen)
Phone: +358 40 54 28 083
Email: etunimi.sukunimi@turkuamk.fi
Unit: Health and Well-being http://www.tuas.fi/en/research-and-development/research-groups/health-promotion/